MCMXLXIII Volume 63
 Number 7

All-In-One: It was a big day and a huge success. Not only did David do a fine job but our numbers were fine as well. Thank you to all who put forth special efforts to make it so. The dinner was great with lots of food and delicious as always!

School: In the last few days out circulating in the community I have been twice asked about our school next year: "what grades are you going to add?" One mother said she wished we would add 5th grade and another mentioned another grade. One thing is certain: there is a growing sense of need for a Christian school option in this area. This is not to say that our public schools are not fine schools. They are and have some great teachers. I know that the costs of a private Christian education are great but what better investment can we make than in our own children?

FHU Lectures: Well, it turns out I didn't go after all. But I did read what others who did attend said about the lectureship from day to day. I participate in a few on-line forums hosted by our brethren and they provide an opportunity to hear what's going on and exchange ideas and views. This makes attending the lectures less a priority. Though I am not ruling out attending another similar event. By the way, the weather provided a pretty good snow down that way yesterday. Year after year the lectures always seem to have the worst weather. When I was on the advisory board, I suggested it to be later in the year, but you can see, it remained the same.

Even though the deadline to sign up for the Challenge Youth Conference has already officially passed, we can still make room for you to come! Let me know if you are interested.

Below is a summary report on the Russia missions work sponsored by the Winchester congregation.

Russian Missions Work:

The Winchester congregation sponsors the Kirov church, which was established when Ed Boggess and several others evangelized this large city in north-central Russia. After meeting in a rented location for several years, the congregation was able to move into a modern building with the financial support coming from Winchester.

Although the size of the congregation varies, it is currently ranging from 30-35 most of whom are older with only about 6 younger adults.

The Kirov church is currently served by Sergey Danilov, who was trained at the Syktyvkar Bible School. He and his wife Sveta have worked with the church for 6 years. He has worked a second job, but the recession has also hit Russia, and he is working most of the time with his studies, Bible class, sermon preparation, and other needs of the congregation.

Growth and the spread of the Word are, of course, the major goal of the Kirov church. They want to attract more young adults and teenagers to the church so they can grow and be more successful.
